Teaching and Learning
 What additional support can be provided in the classroom? How do you help children access the curriculum and develop independent learning? 	Teaching assistants provide 1:1 support and small group support in the classroom. Work in class is adapted to deliver the curriculum by scaffolds, visuals, support & expectation to personalise learning and support children to make progress. Children with identified Special Educational Needs or Disability (SENDs) usually have an Individual Learning Support Plan (LSP) with key information and targets to help their progress. These are set and reviewed on a rolling basis every term. Teachers carefully plan work so that all children can engage with the tasks and make progress. An 'Adaptive Teaching' approach is used where possible, whereby scaffolds and support are used to enable access to whole-class learning. Independent learning is encouraged, and wherever possible, we aim for children to access the curriculum without a high level of support. We work with external agencies such as speech and language therapists, physiotherapists, occupational therapists, educational psychologists, the Learning Support Service and Autistic Spectrum Condition specialists to develop therapy, support, guidance and plans for us to implement
